PETA has a history of using controversial images. Among the stars who have appeared in its ads are Alicia Silverstone (above), Karina Smirnoff, Pamela Anderson, Dennis Rodman and Cloris Leachman.

Next step for PETA? Porn

REUTERS

NEW YORK People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, no stranger to attention-grabbing campaigns featuring nude women, plans to launch a pornography website in the name of animal rights.

The nonprofit organization, whose controversial campaigns draw criticism from women's groups, said it hopes to raise awareness of veganism through a mix of pornography and graphic footage of animal suffering.

"We're hoping to reach a whole new audience of people, some of whom will be shocked by graphic images that maybe they didn't anticipate seeing when they went to the PETA triple-X site," said Lindsay Rajt, PETA's associate director of campaigns.

PETA has been accused of campaigning for animal rights at the cost of exploiting women. A Facebook group, Real Women Against PETA, was launched after the organization paid for a billboard showing an obese woman with the message: "Save the Whales. Lose the Blubber. Go Vegetarian."

Another critical Facebook group is called "Vegans (and Vegetarians) Against PETA."

"PETA is extremely disingenuous," said Jennifer Pozner, executive director of the New York-based advocacy group Women In Media & News. "They have consistently used active sexism as their marketing strategy to garner attention. Their use of sexism has gotten more extreme and more degrading."

"This may be in their minds the only thing left at their disposal to lower the bar," she said.

PETA has filed paperwork to launch its pornography site when the controversial new .xxx domain becomes active in December. While many organizations are scrambling to protect their website names from being hijacked by a pornographer slapping on a .xxx domain, PETA is embracing the new domain as just another way to conduct business.

"We try to use every outlet that we can to speak up for animals," Rajt said. "We anticipated that this new triple-X domain name would be a hot topic and we immediately decided to use it."

There shouldn't be an app for that

Jen Kim
» redeye@tribune.com

Women have always been persecuted. Remember the Salem Witch Trials? Diet shakes? Stiletto heels?

We just can't catch a break. And with Blendr, the latest in creepy techno dating apps, our lives continue to get worse. If FourSquare and match.com had a baby, this would be it.

Developed by the makers of Grindr, a hugely popular gay dating app, Blendr uses the same technology by mixing GPS with personal interests. This makes finding local prey—I mean, dates—ridiculously easy, sometimes even within walking distance.

Ladies, lace up your Nikes and get ready to run, because it seems that Christmas has come early for stalkers. In addition to knowing your general whereabouts (which already is frightening), any idiot with an iPhone also will be privy to your age range and your favorite interests. He now will have access to personal information, such as your crush on Joseph Gordon-Levitt, your passion for nude sunbathing and your recent graduation from high school.

Individually, these random tidbits don't mean anything, but imagine this scenario:

"Hi, don't I know you? I think my little sister went to high school with you. ... Yep, she just graduated too! What a small world. Yeah, I remember her calling you the prettiest girl in school. You like Joseph Gordon-Levitt, right? Yeah, he's in that new cancer movie ... it looks really good. I was thinking about checking it out tomorrow after getting a tan at the pool. Clothes optional. Haha. Anyway, maybe you'd want to join me for the movie?"

Strangers having access to your personal preferences may seem harmless because you get to meet people who ostensibly share things in common with you. Sounds good, right? But doesn't it sound a little too good?

The fact is, by giving strangers access to your personality, they know exactly what to say to you because you've essentially provided them with everything that you want to hear. This puts you at a disadvantage, especially, if you are the "truthful" type.

I know, we're all looking for love, and in this era, it feels like everything has gone the route of the digital shortcut. Text messages replace "hellos" and "I love yous." Relationships are extinguished on Facebook and Twitter before you even get a chance to grieve the loss. All our filthy laundry (and what we had for breakfast) becomes free and public information for a thousand of our closest friends to "like" or comment on.

Blendr isn't the first attempt at a dating shortcut—it's just the latest. Its message is singular: "I think you're cute, but I don't really want to put any effort into getting to know you, so instead of asking you questions to see if we're compatible, I'm just going to let my phone handle that for me. Also, I am pretty sure I'd like to have sex with you, if you let me."

No thanks. The only "blender" I'll ever use is the one that mixes my shakes.

Foursquare and 1 mayor

M-Rahm gets in on badge business

Chicago Tribune

On Foursquare, friends can share their whereabouts with each other by “checking in” at local hot spots using their cellphones, with the most frequent visitors to a particular place earning the title of “mayor.”

Now, Chicago's mayor, Rahm Emanuel, is getting in on the action. He has signed up for the social media service under the handle “ChicagosMayor” and will be checking in at locations around the city as he makes public appearances or visits neighborhoods.

Emanuel also announced Friday a partnership with New York-based Foursquare to showcase Chicago's neighborhoods and encourage residents to explore places outside of tourism spots. The initiative hinges on “badges,” an important part of Foursquare membership who confers titles such as “Gym Rat” or “Jetsetter,” for example, on users that check into a gym or an airport a certain number of times. The badges are mostly about social media bragging rights, although some businesses offer perks to frequent Foursquare visitors.

Chicago will be the first city to offer an official city badge. This “Windy City Badge” will be awarded to Foursquare users that check in at five of 20 spots selected by the city's Department of Cultural Affairs and Special Events. Over the coming weeks, Foursquare

WHERE TO GO

Locations that count toward the Windy City Badge:

- » The DuSable Museum in Washington Park
- » Chicago's Home of Chicken and Waffles in Bronzeville
- » The Music Box Theatre in Lakeview
- » Revolution Brewing in Logan Square will introduce city badges in four other cities.

Locations that count toward the Windy City Badge include the DuSable Museum in Washington Park, Chicago's Home of Chicken and Waffles in Bronzeville, the Music Box Theatre in Lakeview and Revolution Brewing in Logan Square.

Emanuel and Foursquare co-founder Naveen Selvadurai announced the partnership at the Heartland Cafe in Rogers Park, one of the 20 locations. Emanuel admitted he had just learned the basics of Foursquare on his way to the event.

“I want to be honest,” Emanuel told the crowd, which included a group of urban studies students from small liberal arts colleges in the Midwest. “I said to my staff on the way here, ‘What am I doing?’”

DAILY QUOTABLE

“There are rumors on both sides about threats and intimidation. I urge anyone who feels that discussions about the merits of the longer day have crossed the line into hostility—or if you are contacted in an inappropriate time or place—to please report the incident immediately to your principal, the [Chicago Teachers Union] and [Chicago Public Schools].”

GOP lashes out at Obama tax plan

Top congressional Republicans on Sunday accused President Obama of trying to incite class warfare with his proposal for a new tax on millionaires and said they would not support the measure because it would hurt economic growth.

"Class warfare ... may make for really good politics, but it makes for rotten economics," House Budget Committee Chairman Paul D. Ryan (R-Wis.) said on "Fox News Sunday." "We don't need a system that seeks to prey on people's fear, envy and anxiety. We need a system that creates jobs and innovation and removes these barriers for entrepreneurs to go out and rehire people."

The strong opposition by Republicans means the millionaire tax proposal is unlikely to pass Congress. But it promises to become a highly charged centerpiece in the battle over deficit reduction and job creation that will be a focus of the 2012 elections.

Sen. Dick Durbin, an Illinois Democrat, showed the tack his party might take when he slammed Republicans for not supporting Obama's $447 billion jobs bill.

"I think his team put together a positive good plan," Durbin said Sunday. "What's the Republican alternative? Do nothing and protect the millionaires."

As part of his deficit reduction plan, Obama on Monday will propose a new minimum tax rate for millionaires to ensure they pay an effective federal tax rate at least as high as that paid by middle-class earners, administration officials said.

The president will call the new tax the "Buffett rule" after billionaire investor Warren Buffett, an Obama supporter who has publicly complained that tax breaks allow him to pay a lower rate than his secretary.

Another delay for U.S. hikers

The lawyer trying to get two American hikers freed from prison in Iran was not able to get a signature on bail paperwork because a judge is on vacation until Tuesday, he told CNN on Sunday. Bail has been paid for Josh Fattal and Shane Bauer, but their lawyer needs the signatures of two judges to prove it.

Teen emerges from woods

German police are investigating after a 17-year-old boy turned up at Berlin City Hall earlier this month, claiming he has been living in the woods for four to five years, authorities said Sunday. The teen told authorities he had been living in the woods with his father, but decided to come out after his father died.

Churchgoers hold gunman

Parishioners at a Lakeland, Fla., church tackled a gunman who allegedly shot the pastor and associate pastor Sunday, holding the suspect until police arrived, authorities said. The gunman also is suspected of shooting another person before going to the church. The pastor and associate pastor both were hospitalized.

Quake kills at least 11

At least 11 people—six in India and five in Nepal—died when a magnitude-6.9 earthquake struck the northern Indian state of Sikkim near the border between the two nations Sunday night, police said. The deaths and damage came after a total of three quakes struck the region in rapid succession in a mountainous region.

FOUR SCORED

Every week before the Bears game, RedEye's sports crew gets to the point, and we don't let them off the hook. Here's how they fared Sunday:

- ☐ Ernest Wilkins: Bears 23, New Orleans 20
- ☒ Georgia Garvey: New Orleans 24, Bears 21
- ☒ Scott Bolohan: New Orleans 18, Bears 9
- ☒ Bag Boy: New Orleans 28, Bears 13

TALKING MONEY

Matt Forte and Lance Briggs have made it clear they want their contracts upgraded, but do their performances back up their demands? Here's how they did vs. New Orleans.

Briggs

The linebacker asserted himself with 11 tackles, which led the team. He didn't make any jump-out-of-your-seat plays, but he helped his cause much more than he did in Week 1.

Forte

We shudder to think what the offense would have looked like without Forte's 166 total yards (49 rushing, 117 receiving), as the Bears had just 246 as a team.

- $ Stop whining.
- $ Maybe we'll talk.
- $$$ You've got a real shot.
- $$$$ Cha-ching!

ARE THE BEARS' EARS STILL RINGING? NEW ORLEANS' DEFENSE MAKES CUTLER AND CO. MISERABLE

Even though the Bears quarterback was sacked five times in last week's season-opening win over Atlanta, concerns over pass protection were offset by the team's overall dominance.

Not this time. A ferocious New Orleans defense sacked Cutler six times in a 30-13 loss Sunday at the Superdome.

With starting guard Lance Louis out with an ankle injury and starting right tackle Gabe Carimi injured early in Sunday's game, the Bears could not protect Cutler, who showed his frustration on the sideline. He also slammed the ball to the turf in the fourth quarter after the line was repeatedly penalized for false starts.

"They played better than us, simple as that," Bears coach Lovie Smith said. "There were a couple of critical moments where we just didn't get the job done, but this is just one game."

Cutler's voice was raspy afterward and he said it was difficult to call signals amid the din of the Superdome crowd.

"They really got after us blitzwise," he said. "It's not fun, makes my job more difficult. We need to stay out of those positions."

New Orleans blew the game open early in the fourth quarter, increasing its lead to 30-13 on a 12-yard Drew Brees touchdown pass to Darren Sproles.

"He's a good quarterback," Bears linebacker Brian Urlacher said of Brees' performance. "I'm sure there were some breakdowns on our end. ... He's a good quarterback, they have a good scheme and he knows where to throw the football."

Cutler

The Bears lost Carimi to a knee injury. Earl Bennett left the game with a chest injury, and safety Major Wright was shaken up and left the game after making a third-quarter tackle.

On their second possession Sunday, the Bears got a 42-yard run from Matt Forte, as well as an 18-yard pass from Cutler to Forte. Cutler also hooked up with Bennett, who took a helmet to the midsection from safety Roman Harper. Bennett was injured on the play and left the field but later returned.

The drive ended when Cutler passed 7 yards to a wide-open Dane Sanzenbacher.

And for all intents and purposes, the Bears highlights ended there.

Lions aren't kittens anymore

It's early, but the Detroit Lions look scary. Not in a "they could go 0-16" way, either.

They followed up last week's road win over Tampa Bay by eviscerating Kansas City 48-3 on Sunday. Lions quarterback Matthew Stafford already has passed for 599 yards and seven touchdowns.

The Bears first see them in Week 5, just one week after they face another quarterback off to a hot start: Carolina's Cam Newton.

For a guy who wasn't supposed to be much of a passer, Newton looks an awful lot like Tom Brady. You can't just luck your way into 854—yes, 854—passing yards in your first two starts. A few more yards Sunday and the Panthers might have knocked off Green Bay, which would have made Newton lots of friends in Chicago.

OH, YES!

No, it's not just you—we have a hard time believing Detroit, Buffalo and Washington are 2-0, too. Wait a minute, don't these teams know the No. 1 draft pick is at stake? What are they thinking?

OH, NO!

Sunday was rough on running backs. Houston's Arian Foster, who led the NFL in rushing in 2010, reinjured his hamstring Sunday against Miami. And in Detroit, Kansas City running back Jamaal Charles (above) was carted off the field after tearing the ACL in his left knee. Ouch.

UH-OH

Being an Oakland fan isn't easy to begin with, and then the team does this. The Raiders took a 21-3 lead into halftime at Buffalo only to give it up in the third quarter, then twice took the lead in the fourth before surrendering the winning touchdown with less than four minutes left. Stop the insanity!

Kane's high five

With wrist almost healed, Hawks forward sets sights on elite status

Patrick Kane heard a familiar refrain during the offseason.

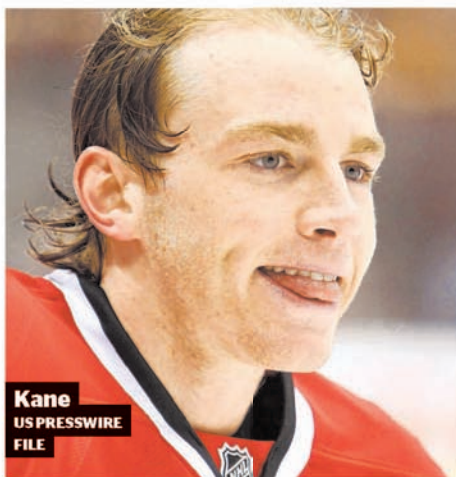

Friends, family and his own voice in the back of his head told the Blackhawks winger it's time to raise his game another notch.

"It's kind of crazy to think I'm still 22 and going into my fifth season," Kane said. "Time has been flying by. I think it's about that time I really take the next step to the elite level. It seems like everyone's kind of been saying that to me this summer. 'All right, you've done well your first four years, now let's really take that step to the next level and become one of the best players in the league.'"

Kane has amassed 103 goals and 200 assists in the first 317 games of his career, and at nearly a point per game is already in the upper echelon of NHL forwards.

For him, that's not enough.

"I've kind of been around that same pace the last two, three, maybe even four years,"

Kane
US PRESSWIRE

said Kane, who had 27 goals and 46 assists in 73 games last season. "It would be nice to take that next step and really kind of put myself up in the best two, three, four or five offensive players in the league."

Surgery on July 19 to repair a scaphoid fracture in his left wrist limited Kane's preparation for the season, but the injury is nearly healed and he participated in a scrimmage Sunday.

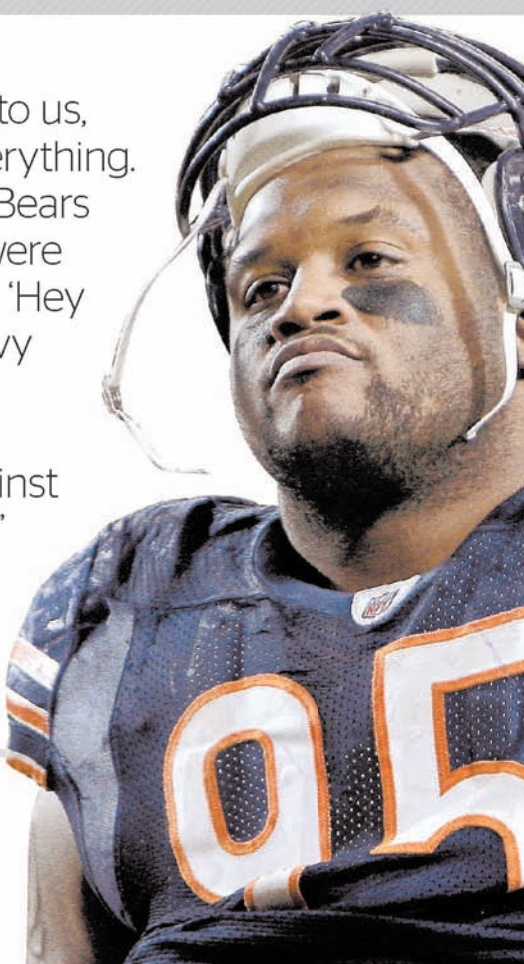

MOUTH WATCH

"He made it fun, talking to us, coaching us up and everything. ... You can still tell he's a Bears fan. Even though they were up he was still telling us, 'Hey man, you're kind of heavy on your stance, you're doing this, you're doing that.' It's like playing against your dad or something."

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

Host Jane Lynch opened the Emmy Awards on Sunday by lip-synching a production number that saw the TV landscape as a building where all TV shows live. She wasn't alone in the pre-taped skit that turned into a live performance, but "30 Rock" star Alec Baldwin was not there.

He was replaced by Leonard Nimoy because Fox parent company News Corp. apparently didn't think his joke about phone hacking—originally a part of the bit—was funny. Sensitive! Here's who I did spot:

- » "Star Trek" icon Nimoy, as the president of TV
- » Martha Plimpton of "Raising Hope"
- » Jimmy Fallon
- » "The Simpsons"
- » "Entourage" stars Jeremy Piven and Rex Lee
- » "Weeds" actor Kevin Nealon

Chicago spotlight

Windy City gets its props in Emmys broadcast

Surprise winner Melissa McCarthy turned the 63rd annual Primetime Emmy Awards on Sunday into a Chicago-centric celebration.

McCarthy, star of CBS' Chicago-set "Mike & Molly" and a Plainfield native, was flabbergasted when her name was announced as outstanding actress in a comedy.

"I'm from Plainfield, Ill., and I'm standing here!" McCarthy gasped, saying after her thanks. "Holy smokes."

The 41-year-old actress has had a breakout year. Not only did her sitcom become a hit in its first season, but she also wowed critics with her performance in the hit film "Bridesmaids." She beat out frontrunners Laura Linney ("The Big C") and Edie Falco ("Nurse Jackie").

McCarthy also was part of one of the Fox broadcast's best bits, which may or may not have been scripted. When nominee Amy Poehler's name was called, she walked on stage as if she won, then stood there to make it look like the nominees were supposed to stand up there. The "Parks and Recreation" star was joined by McCarthy, then Tina Fey ("30

» @showpatrol

Rock"), Martha Plimpton ("Raising Hope") and the previously mentioned nominees.

They all stood together, holding hands as if they were finalists for Miss America. When McCarthy won, a crown was placed on her head and roses and the Emmy were put in her hands.

The show, which was hosted by Chicago native and "Glee" star Jane Lynch, was a mixed bag. Lynch's opening number was fun (see sidebar) as was a wacky but inexplicable production number by The Lonely Island and Michael Bolton. They sang a medley of the popular and raunchy songs Andy Samberg and his Island crew have written for "Saturday Night Live."

But the ceremony dragged in its middle section, despite heroic efforts—and many zingers—from Lynch, who got her start in the Chicago theater and improv comedy scene. One of my favorites: "You know, a lot of people are curious why I'm a lesbian.

Ladies and gentlemen, the cast of 'Entourage.'"

ABC's comedy "Modern Family" dominated early in the evening, winning awards from Julie Bowen and Ty Burrell in the supporting acting categories and for directing and writing, which gave Lynch the opportunity for another joke.

"Welcome back to the 'Modern Family' awards!" she quipped.

Adding to the Chicago feel of the night was Julianna Margulies, who won the dramatic actress award for her Chicago-set lawyer drama "The Good Wife." (Sure, it's filmed in New York, but I'll allow it.)

One of the night's biggest surprises was "Friday Night Lights" star Kyle Chandler's win over heavy favorite Jon Hamm of "Mad Men" in the lead dramatic actor race. "Mad Men" did beat "Friday Night Lights" to win the top drama award.

Sheen provided one of the broadcast's tensest moments. The actor, who was fired from "Two and a Half Men" earlier this year due to substance-abuse problems and a feud with his boss, presented the award for lead actor in a comedy.

"Before I present outstanding lead actor in a comedy series, my old category, I want to set something straight," Sheen said as a hush fell over the audience. "I want to take a moment to get something off my chest and say a few words to everybody here from 'Two and a Half Men.' From the bottom of my heart, I wish you nothing but the best for this upcoming season. We spent eight wonderful years together and I know you will continue to make great television."

Sheen then announced Jim Parsons of "The Big Bang Theory" as the winner.

"This is so odd for so many reasons," Parsons said as he accepted the award.

Odd indeed, considering many thought Steve Carell would win his first Emmy in the category, for his last season on "The Office."

But as Lynch cracked earlier in the evening when she lost out to Bowen. "There are losers ... And if I wasn't hosting, I'd be home by now eating a tub of turkey meatballs."

Charlie Sheen vs. Ashton Kutcher

Many readers know this already, but Charlie Sheen did not get off easy during his recent Comedy Central roast.

Yes, there will be tiger blood when the roast airs at 9 p.m. Monday, just an hour after the ninth season premiere of his former series, "Two and a Half Men." TV's most popular sitcom tries to hold onto that lofty "most-watched" designation with the addition of Ashton Kutcher, who came aboard when Sheen was axed after legal run-ins and a public feud with his boss, executive producer Chuck Lorre. Kutcher will play a lovelorn billionaire who moves in after Sheen's character reportedly is killed off.

Many of the jokes aimed at Sheen during the roast had to do with Sheen killing himself through substance abuse.

"We all know there's a good chance Charlie will be dead soon," Seth MacFarlane said before reading an obituary that not only dissed Sheen, but the recently deceased (and not due to a drug overdose) Amy Winehouse.

Hopefully, after Monday's roast and Kutcher's "Men" debut, we can all put the Charlie Sheen crazy train behind us. I never understood the allure of him or his show, neither of which I found all that funny.

Sharp '2 Broke Girls'

CBS is hoping the Kutcheriffic "Two and a Half Men" does well so that its Monday comedy lineup remains on top of the ratings. They all return Monday, with the addition of the only one I'm likely to watch regularly, "2 Broke Girls." Kat Dennings plays Max, a waitress who works two jobs to stay afloat, and Beth Behrs is Caroline, a former rich girl who begins work at the same diner. The always cutting humor takes aim at their odd-couple differences, as well sex, drugs and money. It's harsh, but hilarious.

Kat Dennings

Fab retro Chicago

Everyone seems to have gotten their tails in a twist before one episode of NBC's new supposedly Bunny-centric drama, "The Playboy Club," has aired. (It premieres at 9 p.m. Monday.) No room here to get into all that stuff, but let me just say I love and loathe the premiere equally. The Chicago-shot drama takes us back to swinging city in 1961, just a year after Playboy magazine founder Hugh Hefner opened his first nightclub here. If you can forgive historical inaccuracies and a bit of hypocrisy, you might enjoy the intriguing mob mystery and a surprising gay subplot, not to mention the fabulous Laura Benanti as Bunny Mother Carol-Lynne and Eddie Cibrian's dimples.

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You could discover that your lover is turning into a major chatterbox. You want to make love, but she just wants to talk about her feelings. Venus recommends making some strong vodka cocktails.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

A funky moon is reminding you that you're wise to have misgivings about a certain someone. Maybe you've unearthed evidence that your honey has affections for somebody else. Or perhaps you're realizing that you're repeating certain negative patterns in your relationship.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You might be surprised when somebody pursues you in a hot and heavy way. Mars is reminding you that, even if you're single, you needn't remain single for long.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You're going back and forth about a relationship. Maybe this person isn't the perfect fit, but you still enjoy spending time with him or her.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

A gentle sun is showing you that it's not worth holding onto old grudges. So your ex trashed your apartment and your reputation. You survived.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

You could discover that something unexpected turns you on in a major way. Your partner is doing some sensual explorations with you, and you're enjoying every steamy minute of it. The moon is increasing your sensitivity and your willingness to lose yourself in pleasure.

Aries March 21-April 19

Saturn is the score keeper of the zodiac. Right now, it could be bringing you some unwanted bad karma. But if you screwed your ex over (and not in a good way), you have to expect negative energy to return to you at some point. Deal with it.

Taurus April 20-May 20

You'll make a sloppy, drunken confession to a friend, thanks to the moon. You'll admit that he or she turns you on much more than your wife/husband/significant other.

Gemini May 21-June 21

A flirty moon in your sign has you craving trouble. You'll flirt with 16 people at a party as your spouse watches you. You'll send suggestive emails to someone just because you can. Remember, sometimes there is this annoying little thing called "consequences."

Cancer June 22-July 22

Saturn says you need to be more aware of "give and take." Your honey might be suffering in silence as you take advantage. Do your share of the chores. Pay half the bills. And just for something different, ask your partner, "How are you doing?"

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

With Mars in your sign, your ego is inflated. You'll think that you're the star of the room when you walk into it. Just avoid the Lindsay Lohan syndrome. She still thinks she's all that.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

The sun is reminding you that you're not a complete gargoyle. So stop being so shy. If you want to date a certain person, ask him or her out. Don't wait around for love to strike.

THIS WEEK

Common will sign copies of his memoir, "One Day It'll All Make Sense," at the Macy's on State Street and the Barnes & Noble on DePaul's Lincoln Park campus Tuesday and will celebrate the book's release with a Moët & Chandon-sponsored party at Roof at The Wit hotel later that night.

That's a wrap

Superman leaves Chicago, and now we know his true weakness: Steak

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

» @aboutluisgomez

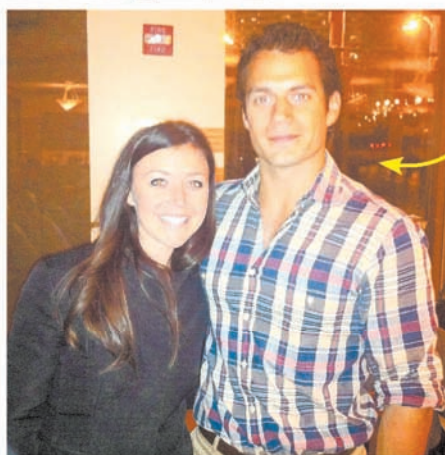

They didn't hit Chicago's trendiest nightclubs as often as Michael Bay did while directing "Transformers: Dark of the Moon," but the stars of the Superman reboot "Man of Steel" weren't locking themselves in their hotel rooms either during their recent 10-day shoot in the city.

» For more of Chicago's celeb news, go to chicagotribune.com/luis.

Oscar-nominated actress Amy Adams, who filmed a scene outside of an apartment building near Water Tower Place mall Friday, dined at Gold Coast restaurants The Goddess & Grocer, Gibsons Bar & Steakhouse and Le Colonial. Co-star Laurence Fishburne dined at Le Colonial twice—both times alone. He also hung out at The Joynt in River North.

Superman himself, Henry Cavill, dined at Smith & Wollensky five days in a row last week, in addition to Gibsons the week before that. My friend happened to be sitting by Cavill at Smith & Wollensky on Friday and said he was extremely friendly (and patient) when she asked for a photo after dinner. "I couldn't get my camera phone to work at first," she said. "He told me, 'No worries. Take your time.'"

Unlike Bay, "Man of Steel" director Zack Snyder kept a low profile during filming. Snyder did, however, attend the movie's Chicago wrap party Saturday at Rockit Bar & Grill after filming near Daley Plaza (extras could be seen screaming and running on West Washington Street). Cavill also hit Saturday's wrap party and was spotted at Paris Club afterward.

ALSO SPOTTED ...

» Joe Jonas dined at Sunda on Sept. 12 following his show at the House of Blues. On Tuesday, Jonas had drinks at Public House.

» Jonah Hill had lunch at Japonais on Wednesday.

» Bears quarterback Jay Cutler had dinner at Mastro's and lunch Thursday for the second time in seven days Friday.

» The Blackhawks' Patrick Kane had dinner Wednesday at Mastro's and lunch Thursday at Harry Caray's Italian Steakhouse in River North.

» Tyrese Gibson and the Blackhawks' Jonathan Toews dined separately Friday at Smith & Wollensky.

» Bears' Gabe Carimi brought his family of 15 to Chicago Cut Steakhouse.

» Former "Will & Grace" star Sean Hayes dined at Mercadito on Saturday.

» Rosie O'Donnell took part in quiz night at Cullen's Bar & Grill in Lakeview on Wednesday.

Kelly Bensimon

Hey, housewives—you're outta here! Alex McCord, Jill Zarin, Kelly Bensimon and Cindy Barshop will not be returning to Bravo's reality series "The Real Housewives of New York," usmagazine.com reports. Ramona Singer, Sonja Morgan and LuAnn DeLesseps return to the show. Though the move was described as a firing, Bravo said in a statement: "It is a friendly departure among the other ladies."

Panty raid

R. Kelly is ready to get down and dirty again, which you probably could deduce from the title of his next album: "Black Panties." "I just did the whole 'Love Letter' joint and everybody's thinking, 'That's the direction he's going now,'" Kelly said on WGCI (107.5-FM), according to ew.com. "No! That was a moment in time."

'Fast' ambition

Jordana Brewster is ready for the new "Fast and the Furious" movie. "Well, we've been to Rio and we've been to Tokyo, so I think Europe should be next," Brewster told the Tribune's Luis Gomez on Friday while making an appearance at Chicagoland Speedway. "They do have the autobahns." « Turn to Page 34 for more of Luis' celebrity sightings.

HOT DATE

Sept. 27

That's when Mike Sorrentino will make his acting debut in the yobi.tv Web series "New Stage," people.com reports. The Situation will play a hip-hop star who is the lead judge on a TV talent show.

THE DIGIT

If it feels like 1994 again, that's because the 3-D release of the classic Disney movie "The Lion King" earned $29.3 million over the weekend to finish No. 1 at the domestic box office.

“This is a temporary setback, though I'm not sure how long or short a period of time it will be.”

—John Mayer, on his Tumblr blog, announcing Friday that he has a throat condition that will force him to cancel several appearances and delay the release of his next album until 2012
